BASEBALL

Cameron is well on its way to another district title as the baseball Yoemen head for a 7 p.m. Thursday AAA zone game with Lampasas.

The Yoemen crushed Rosebud-Lott Tuesday night 10-0 at Cameron Field behind the two-hit pitching of Gary Thweatt.

And it was field day for Yoe hitters in ripping R-L's Richard Rodriguez for 13 hits, including a double for John Barron in a 2 for 4 night, 2 for 3 for Jeff Smitherman, pitcher Thweatt and Gene Kopriva and tops for evening in Pat Schiguit's 3 for 4.

It was Cameron's eighth consecutive pre-district win, no losses thus far, while R-L took the loss for a 6-4 season going home. Cameron had won an earlier game at R-L by a 5-3 margin.

The game was called after 5 innings on a windy, chill night. Outcome was never doubted with Cameron getting 2 runs in the first frame and 4 in the second.

Each team committed one error.

Barron will start for Cameron Thursday night against the Lampasas club. No early season reports were available on the West Texas club, but the road trip had a home base of 8-0 to touch.

SCOUTS

We understand some big league scouts are looking at Cameron's club, following their district win last year and apparent ease in building an 8-0 early season record.

A number of these youngsters have been playing together for years and have built a balanced, powerful club around a lot of youthful experience and strength in pitching and hitting.

In recent years, several Cameron youths have looked good to major college football scouts and have gone to UofT, Austin or other schools in Texas.

Chances are some more scouts will see this club play through the season and find the talent worth return trips.

It's no accident these boys are winners.

Fuchs Wins Fair Sweepstakes

Gary Fuchs was named one of two Sweepstakes winners from among 300 entries in the Regional Science Fair held at Waco March 29 and 30.

The award earns him an expense-paid trip to San Diego in May for the International Science Fair.

Gary's project was "Formation of the Egg Yolk."

Other winners from Yoe High are James Herbert Nance with a project on "Eutrophication" which placed first in Botany. Cindy Clark's project on "How Sound Affects Plants" place third in Botany and received a certificate of achievement from the U. S. Army.

In Mathematics and Engineering Richard Dodd's "Proof of Congruency" placed second and Jackie Chubb's "Powers and Roots of Complex Numbers" placed third.

David Hollas placed 2nd in Physics with "The Effect of Temperature on the Speed of Sound." David also won two special awards, one from the United States Air Force - certificate for an outstanding project in the field of physics, and the other award was from the American Institute of Physics - Sigma Pi Sigma - a slide rule.

Darrell Schneider's project "The Pendulum Motor" had an honorable mention and two special awards from the U. S. Army and Central Texas Chapter of Professional Engineers - a pocket slide rule. Paul Vaculin with "Viscosities" received a special award from the Central Texas Dental Society.

John M. Chubb, Fred T. Johns, and Mrs. Patsy Nance sponsored the group.

There were 15 projects from Yoe entered in the regional fair.

Other awards for Gary included the following special awards: American Veterinary Association - Webster's Dictionary; Baylor University Biology Department award - subscription to the Scientific American; National Aeronautics and Space Administration - a certificate of achievement; and Navy Science Award - attache case and certificate of achievement.

City Council Votes To Restore Gas Clause

The city council meeting in regular session Tuesday evening voted to restore the rate adjustment clause in the ordinance giving Lone Star Gas the franchise for gas in the city.

B. L. Edwards, local Lone Star Gas manager, told the council that if the clause was not restored, the gas company would be seeking another rate increase in the near future.

There was some discussion before the vote was taken with Councilman Bob Clark stating that the gas company was asking the council to eliminate bargaining rights with them. Mayor Gene Blake asked if the council was being fair to the city of Cameron if the clause meant there would be no representation.

The clause allows the gas company to adjust rates in the city according to increases or decreases in the city gate rate.

Vote was 3-2, with Councilmen Lincoln Mondrik, Lester Turner and Lawrence Zotz voting yes and Clark and Starrett Hickman voting no.

In other business the council canvassed votes in Tuesday's city election. A total of 77 votes were cast -- 62 for Hickman, 67 for Zotz, and 69 for Clark.

It was noted that a new police radio has been installed at a cost of about $237, to be paid for out of revenue sharing funds.

The Mayor also reported that construction on the city's storm drain project is progressing, with dryer weather. The city plans to pave Crockett street as soon as drainage construction is finished.

The city has started installing some new 6" fire hydrants to replace old 4" ones, Mayor Blake also told the council.

Contract Let For Road Work

AUSTIN

Contracts for highway construction in the Bryan district have been awarded by the Texas Highway Commission.

The work will be under the supervision of District Engineer Joe G. Hanover and will be in Milam and Washington Counties.

E. W. Hable and Sons, Inc., of Corsicana was awarded a contract for construction for grading, structures, base and surfacing of 3.6 miles of Farm to Market 3242 in Milam County. Low bid was $186,300.57.

The project extends from 3.6 miles northeast of Gause to U. S. Highway 79 in Gause. Delton A. Kittrell of Hearne is the Highway Department engineer in charge of the project which will take an estimated 125 working days.

Scholarship Winners Told

Two top-ranking seniors from Rockdale High School and Lexington High School have been named winners of the $4,000, four-year Alcoa Foundation college scholarships awarded annually to sons and daughters of employees at Aluminum Company of America's Rockdale Works.

Recipients of the 1973 scholarships are Mark Menke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Menke, Route 3, Rockdale, and Joyce Koudelka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Koudelka, Route 1, Dime Box.

School Trustee Candidates Offer Views

The five candidates for three positions on the Cameron school board were invited by The Herald to offer statements about their candidacy for election as trustees.

Candidates are incumbents Bently Hause, who has served 3 years; Forrest Sapp, and Charles McDermott, serving 9 years; and John B. Henderson Jr. and Mrs. Carol Barr.

Statements were offered by Mrs. Barr, Henderson and Hause. McDermott and Sapp said they had no statements except that they wanted to serve the community.

The statements follow:

BENTLY HAUSE

I would like to see the school continue in a constructive manner, and want to do the best I can to help.

My efforts will be directed toward updating the school to help the children obtain the best education possible.

I have two children in school, in fifth and seventh grade, and want the best for them along with the other children.

JOHN HENDERSON

I am pleased to offer myself as a candidate for election to the Cameron School Board. After giving this matter long and serious consideration, I felt that I should file for election to this office.

There are several obligations that prompted me to do this: my wife Lella and I have three children in school and we are vitally interested in their education and their future; Cameron is our home and we live here and make our living here--I want to do what I can to make it an even better place to live and work and, lastly, I got a good education in the Cameron schools several years ago and feel that I should try to give something back in return.

My experience and training qualify me for service to the public as a School Board member, I believe. I was educated in the fields of busness and law and have served in the following public offices since 1960: City Judge of the City of Cameron and County Attorney for Milam County. I have been active in the Lions Club, Chamber of Commerce, other civic work and in the Methodist Church.

If elected to the School Board, I will do my best to serve in the interest of all of the people of this School District and will make my decisions on the basis of what is best for the students, their parents and the patrons of the district. We can and must see that all of the children who live here are provided the very best education we can give them and always work toward this goal.

CAROL BARR

Carol Sanders Barr, graduate of Yoe High School, attended Texas Womens University and Texas University, who now has three children in the Cameron Public School system, has become increasingly interested in the policies and decisions of the governing body of our local school.

In announcing her candidacy for Trustee of the Cameron Independent School Board, Mrs. Barr said her decision was based on too much complacency on the part of a large majority of the tax paying public who continue to pay for the educational opportunities of the local children, but who take no active public participation to support the current needs.

I would encourage not only more cooperation and suggestions from the public concerning the physical advancements of the school system, but also participation and suggestions from the student councils of Junior High and Senior High schools, who could very well have some constructive ideas on the policies which directly concern them.

The city of Cameron has made exceptional advancements in the last few years toward a more contemporary status and I believe the school system needs a more active outlook to match and compete with local, current demands.

For many years now there seems to have been a big gap in communications which has prevented advancement in this school system, and I would work and urge others to work to fill this gap so that this community knows we're proud of the words "Praise to our school we sing. . . . .

Cen-Tex High Road...

Temple's Cultural Activities Center is funding an arts center and Texas A&M University is raising operating funds for artists for the new Opera and Performing Arts Society.

The CAC has operating revenues from grants, but needs contributions for a new major center. The OPAS has funded an arts complex at A&M University, but needs operating capital the first year.

We urge the loyalties of A&M grads of this area toward contributions to this $20,000 fund to bring major artists and companies to Bryan - College Station's A&M campus.

And we urge contributions toward construction of a major CAC center in Temple for those who live in that orbit and can benefit by its proximity.

Your Herald has long been a booster of the arts in whatever way it can benefit the Cameron-Milam area. But certain facilities and programming are beyond this area at present that are obtainable in those adjacent population centers which deserve them.

The time will come, as prescienced by the Dallas Symphony's visit twice here, the Central Texas Symphony's visit twice here, when Cameron itself will come of age for an auditorium, either school or community or a combination of both.

But until that time, and we hope it is not far off, we urge donor consideration for these major efforts in the development of the arts -- symphonic, ballet, virtuoso artist, opera, whatever -- at those centers closest at hand: the CAC building anew, the OPAS funding a complex already built or abuilding.

Preventive Maintenance...

It is interesting that the Smithsonian Institute, one of the first museums in this country, has come up with an overview publication called "Pulse of the Planet."

According to Reuters, it tells about natural phenomena, disasters and inordinate developments of all kind, including "a frightening record of natural disasters, as a chilling indictment of human folly and greed. . ."

Listed among such follies of the past five years were: 51 major oil spills (from tankers), 137 "ecological events" such as major animal mortalities, migrations and population fluctuations.

It is often said in what is called "the age of the journalist" that we're better off not knowing what is happening to many of our countrymen or earth inhabitants. But the inter-relationship of city and country, cold and warm climates, the whole visable and invisible "ball of wax," compels such interchange if one nation's folly does not become the whole earth's disaster.

The Smithsonian's report will establish a pattern of how man's activities are changing nature and himself; and how natural events continue to affect man beyond any controls he attempts to impose.

We take the only position left to civilization: that "knowledge is not only power" for the governors and leaders, but essense to the great mass who need to understand why things are done and who want to know who's right and who's not so right.

Natural calamities may be acts of God, but so many are now man-induced or man-related, it is incumbent for us to know as much as we can about both kinds.

It is of little consequence to find out after a calamity what caused it. But before, well that's another story.

Fish Can Hold Liquor

By Paul Giguere

BOSTON

The saying that a man can "drink like a fish" may be higher praise for elbow - bending prowess than anyone ever before realized.

Recent research at Boston's City Hospital and at McLean Hospital in suburban Belmont indicates that fish can really put the sauce away -- and rise for more even though wobbling in the tank.

But like human imbibers, the fish also seem to suffer severe hangovers. They (the fish) may even flip right out of the water.

Dr. David Ingle, a neurobiologist, has pioneered in the study of fish and alcoholism with Dr. Ralph Ryback, psychiatrist in charge of the alcoholic unit at McLean Hospital, in research that began at City Hospital.

From their observations, fish appear able to build up such a high tolerance to alcohol that they could drink any man under the table.

Of course, the subjects -- six - inch - long short tail goldfish -- were actually swimming in what could be called a diluted cocktail, a tankful of water into which had been poured the equivalent of two dozen martinis.

Their alcohol consumption, however, was in a controlled fashion, by swallowing and through their gills.

Very little alcohol apparently was absorbed through their strong fish skins -- much less than would be the case if you dumpted an equivalent quantity of martinis in your backyard pool and went for a swim.

After two hours or so of happy swimming, the fish gave every indication of being good and drunk, Dr. Ingle observed. They performed intricate maneuvers and finally showed evidence of getting the staggers.

Careful tests, nevertheless, disclosed that the fish had demonstrated a capacity to "hold their liquor" that few men could equal without long since having passed out. Possibly only the most case-hardened of skid row alcoholics could have done as well.

Various other experiments suggested that the fish "learned" faster with a little alcohol, but like some human beings, suffered from such side-effects as memory and judgment loss, sometimes accompanied by aggressive behavior, when moderately under the weather.

Interestingly, the fish seemed to stay drunk longer on bourbon than on water laced with straight alcohol and orange juice or quinine as a mixer.

Dr. Ryback and Dr. Ingle found, too, that fish who could run a maze while drunk couldn't remember how to do it when sober. But on another bender, the fish once again could negotiate the maze with ease. This suggested to the scientists the possibility that certain memories may be sealed in the brain after drunkenness and unlocked only by a return to the bottle. The events of a "lost weekend" may be forgotten for this reason and not because they are painful.

The scientists, or cource, aren't particularly concerned whether a fish can hold its liquor better than a man. They are interested in observing in a much less complex creature like the fish. The mechanism by which the brain becomes addicted to alcohol, and in gaining more fundamental knowledge of the structure and function of the brain itself.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

TRUTH ABOUT THE RUSSIAN WHEAT DEAL

SENATOR HUBERT H. HUMPHREY (Minn.) ". . . The Senate, as well as the entire Nation, knows that there has been great concern about what has been called the Russian wheat deal. I have not been a severe critic of that deal or of that trade arrangement because I thought that, on balance, it was in the national interest. However, we have learned a good deal from it. . .

"The Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. Bellmon) and I were commissioned by the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry to examine this matter. WE JOURNEYED TO THE SOVIET UNION TO DISCUSS IT WITH SOVIET OFFICIALS, and we discussed it with American officials. We filed an appropriate report — we hope it will be helpful - with Congress, as a document of the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. . .

"The distinguished Comptroller General of the United States, Elmer B. Staats, appeared before the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry and presented to us the results of a study conducted by the GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE on the Russian wheat sales and Agriculture's role in expanding U.S. wheat exports. . .

"The material was ordered to be printed in the Record." (An excerpt follows):

The Department of Agriculture, quite appropriately, points out that the United States stands to benefit substantially from wheat sales to Russia. These benefits include a POSITIVE impact on our balance of payments, the LESSENING of storage and inventory costs, REDUCED domestic subsidies, INCREASED returns to a majority of farmers for their harvests, and the OPENING of new trade relationships. We estimate the balance-of-payments benefits will exceed $700 million.

SENATOR HUMPHREY. ". . . I hope that those who are writing about the Russian wheat sales and those who comment on the matter would take time to read this report. It makes no wild accusations. It charges no corruption. It simply presents a detailed analysis of what transpired and the information the Department had prior to the wheat sale.

"It is an excellent report. . ."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

There's been much bunk aired on television and an overabundance of muckraking by some columnists regarding the Russian wheat deal. As Sen. Humphrey suggests, they should, "Read the report . . . It charges no corruption." The Senator's statements are sincerely nonpartisan.

For those interested in the facts pertaining to the Russian wheat deal the complete text of the report is printed in Issue No. 37 of the Congressional Record.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

Excusing the New York woman who wants to control the price of meat by freezing the price of cattle on the hoof, a job ranchers will be glad to turn over to her, considering the fact that on any given day at any cattle auction prices range from maybe 15 cents a pound to 80 cents, depending on the various classes of animals, their age, condition, and the shrewdness of the buyers and the willingness of the sellers with or without the prodding of the banker who holds the mortgage, as I say, to pick up this sentence again, excusing that woman, the rest of the housewives who are demanding a boycott on meat till the price comes down are on the right track but they don't go far enough.

For example, the price of lumber has shot up and I'd like to see the women picketing lumber yards and urging everybody to go without 2x4's.

Or take gasoline and oil. You know they've gone up and the only answer is to walk to your next boycott assignment, or if you do drive to refuse to change your oil.

And of course with some of the big city banks raising interest rates, everybody ought to stop borrowing money. Farmers aren't the only ones who ought to be taught a lesson. This will put a burden on some people because, with the price of meat as high as it is, it's all they can do to keep up the payments on their campers and speed boats.

In fact, if you think about it, there's nothing whose price hasn't gone up recently, from hospitals to colleges to tractors to cowfeed to eggs to bread to cars to telephones to taxes, and if the housewives of this nation really want to whip inflation they ought to form a line around the entire outer boundaries of the country and declare a national boycott of everything.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

The Family Lawyer

Secret Atheist

"I am a believing, God-fearing Christian," George assured Kathy repeatedly during their courtship. But after the wedding, he confessed that he had been lying. He had been an atheist all the time.

To Kathy, a devoutly religious woman, the situation was unbearable. As soon as possible she went to court for an annulment, and the judge granted her a decree. The judge said the marriage lacked the "meeting of the minds" that was essential to make any contract binding.

While the law will tolerate a reasonable amount of "salesmanship" in courting, it will not tolerate deception that strikes at the heart of the marriage relation.

However, not every statement connected with religious matters is considered to be that vital.

Take another case in which the bridegroom, having promised to go through a church wedding after the civil ceremony, failed to carry out his promise. For five months he managed to find one excuse after another for staying away from the church.

At last his wife filed suit for an annulment. But this time, the court turned her down. The court reasoned that if she was willing to put up with her husband's excuses for five months, the religious ceremony could not have been so important to her after all.

Of course, the more firmly the marriage is established, the more reluctant the courts are to annul.

A number of cases have been based on the premarital consent by one spouse to have the children raised in the religion of the other spouse. In this situation, even if the consent turns out to be fraudulent, courts have generally refused to find enough grounds for an annulment.

Reason: with the couple having dwelt together for years as husband and wife, and with children already in existence, it is very late indeed to declare that the marriage had been invalid from the start.

Spring Planting Behind Schedule . . . Texas on Quarterly Report . . . Summer Potato Plantings Increase . . . Early Lamb Crop Outlook . . . Egg Production Cracks . . .

Planting schedules throughout Texas are behind schedule from as much as two to four weeks in many areas. All of the state--with perhaps exceptions in some sections--have adequate moisture for 1973 spring growing.

Cotton planting in the Lower Rio Grande Valley has been hampered by a long siege of wet, cold weather. Seedbed preparation is considerably behind schedule from the Blacklands to the Valley.

Wheat continues to make excellent growth on the High and Low Plains, Edwards Plateau, East Texas and Central Texas. Oats are also providing good grazing in most areas.

Grain sorghum planting is underway in the southern half of the state but has been slowed due to wet weather.

HOG numbers are down nine percent in Texas as of March 1. On that date there were 1,150,000 head of hogs and pigs in the state. Texas recently has been added to a quarterly hog report, which shows the increased importance of the swine industry in Texas in relation to the rest of the nation.

Texas hog producers intend to farrow 62,000 sows during March to May, which is nine percent more than a year ago.

June-August intended farrowings are estimated at 68,000 head, the same as a year ago.

Of the March 1 inventory of hogs and pigs in Texas, 16 percent were reported as being kept for breeding purposes.

Nationwide, hogs and pigs in the 10 corn belt states are up two percent from a year ago. The December 1972-February 1973 pig crop is six percent above last year. A nine percent increase in sows farrowing was partially offset by a three percent decrease in average litter rate.

EARLY lamb crop in Texas as well as the nation shows a four percent decline from a year ago. For the three-state-total--Texas, Kansas and California--the early lamb crop totaled 1,831,000 head. For Texas, the lamb crop totaled 970,000 head. The Jan. 1 inventory of ewes one year old and older was down nine percent. Lambing is reported to be ahead of last year.

Texas sheep and lambs on feed as of March 1 totaled 237,000 head, which is down nine percent from a year ago and 30 percent below Jan. 1. Sheep and lambs on feed are those intended for slaughter being fed a ration of grain or other concentrates or on succulent pastures and expected within the next three months to produce a carcass which will grade good or better.

INTENDED plantings for summer potatoes in Texas this year is estimated to be six percent more than a year ago. Growers intend to plant 15,500 acres this year compared to 14,600 acres last season. Early plantings are underway on the High Plains and will continue through April.

Potatoes in the Lower Rio Grande Valley have emerged and most fields reportedly have a good stand. Growth has been slowed by seasonable cold weather and excessive rains.

EGG production in Texas showed a big decline during February. The production was 20 percent below a year ago and seven percent under a month ago. Nationwide, egg production was down nine percent a year ago and a month ago.

Egg Prices Going Up

COLLEGE STATION

The commercial egg industry was asked here Wednesday to let consumers know in advance that egg prices are likely on their way up, thereby providing a sort of "buffer" against negative reaction.

The industry, said Ed Whitesides of Austin, director of the Texas Department of Agriculture's Consumer Services Division, should put itself in a position to tell the consumer, "I told you so," by telling homemakers in advance that egg prices will be increasing and why.

Whitesides, speaking to members of the 18th annual Commercial Egg Clinic (March 28) at Texas A&M University, said he believes that much of the hard feeling against beef was brought on by that industry's failure to let the public know about coming price rises.

People feel that they need to be notified of what to expect, he pointed out.

The speaker said indications are that egg prices will climb this summer, partly because consumers are shying away from high priced meats and going to eggs to meet family protein needs. Other reasons are rising feed, processing and transportation costs.

The beef industry knew its prices were going up, too, "but they didn't let anyone know about it. They just let it (prices) gradually go up--without notice," he explained.

Predator Survey Set In County

By Bill McCutchen

In the next few days Milam County producers will be receiving a questionaire from the County Extension office on losses of sheep, goats and calves from coyotes and other predators. The survey will cover the 12 month period from March 1, 1972-February 28, 1973.

Similar surveys will be conducted in most of the counties in the state.

There has been a sharp increase in the number of complaints of livestock losses in Milam County since the ban on the use of chemicals to control coyotes and other predators. This survey was initiated to see how extensive preadtor problems are.

There are very few goats and sheep remaining in the county, and complaints have mainly been on loss or damage to baby calves.

GRAIN SORGHUM LATE

With grain sorghum planting already a month late and the weather still threatening, Milam County farmers were planting through the weekend on all the land that would support equipment.

I was in a meeting last week and overheard two farmers visiting about planting. One asked his neighbor when he thought it would be dry enough to plant. His neighbor remarked: Just as soon as you can get your tractor from one end - row to the other.

This just about the situation farmers can't afford to wait on ideal planting conditions as it is already into cotton planting time.

Speaking of cotton, I have five boll weevil traps out in the county. One by my house and one each on Frank Kratochvil, Hugo Aigners, Joe Glasers and William Bechusens. March 30th I took six overwintered weevils from the trap by Hugo Aigners. Very little cotton had been planted there and according to the traps a welcoming party of weevils is already on the scene.

WEED CONTROL

With more than adequate rainfall this spring most of the pasture weeds are up and growing and now is the time to control them.

Weeds are easier to control chemically while they are young and actively growing and by spraying now you should be completed prior to your neighbors cotton crop emerging, so the advantages are two fold.

Producers are reminded that a permit is required and should be secured from the Texas Department of Agriculture prior to treatment.

Specific recommendations for controlling weeds common to pastures in Milam County are available at the County Extension office.

LITTLE THINGS HELP

Little things -- such as helping repot house plants, buying birthday cards, and quiet conversations -- provide children with intangible feelings of love, security and self-worth, notes Dr. Jennie Kitching, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

USE CARPETS

Use bold - patterned carpeting to make a large room look smaller and cozier -- warm colors tend to make it more inviting, says Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

Farm Labor Numbers Drop

AUSTIN

"Increased mechanization and improved efficiency in operations are given as reasons for the decline in farm labor. These are positive aspects. But the negative side is that farm people are giving up and moving to the cities, which already are too crowded," Commissioner White said.

Hired farm labor has declined 53 per cent during the past 12 years, thus dropping the total of Texas farm workers from an average of 423,000 in 1960 to a low of 275,000 in 1972.

"Farmers cannot meet the rising labor costs; therefore, more laborers, unskilled for urban jobs, are moving to cities," White said.

Since 1960 the number of Texas farms declined from 247,000 to 209,000, a decrease of 15 per cent.

"These facts point out again the need for rural redevelopment. The growth of the size of farms is a fact of modern farming, but there is still room for the small farmer in today's markets," White contended.

As the farm numbers decline, the average size of farms has increased substantially. The average farm in Texas is now 678 acres compared to 619 acres in 1960.

Family labor on farms has also shown a 35 per cent decline during the past 12 years.

"Emptying of rural areas in Texas is one of the most tragic events in our history. Our nation's strength lies in private ownership of the land, especially in the family - owned farm. Rural areas must be helped to strengthen their economy and the attractions of rural life. It is essential if our cities and rural areas are to survive."

FARM MACHINERY

Texas farmers have several alternatives for obtaining farm machinery, according to a finance specialist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Among these are custom hiring, leasing (operating lease or financial lease), and purchasing (direct purchase or financing).

FB Leader Raps Nixon For Ceiling On Meat

Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. (Red) Woodson said Friday, March 30, that President Nixon's decision to impose a ceiling on beef, pork and lamb prices was ill - advised.

The head of the state's largest general farm organization said that although the ceiling was not placed directly on the farm animal, it had the same effect.

"We believe that letting supply and demand work would have been the best way to assure the housewives of adequate supplies of meat at reasonable prices," the farm leader said. "Farmers and ranchers are production-minded and would have responded to better prices with fuller production."

The state farm leader said the price ceiling would lead to a cost-price squeeze for the livestock producer.

"The President's order did not freeze livestock production costs," Woodson said. "It is conceivable that if the cost - price squeeze gets bad enough, some producers will have to curtail production or go out of business. This could lead to a critical scarcity in the months to come."

The Farm Bureau president said that agricultural producers recognize the "tremendous" political pressure upon the President to do something about meat prices.

"We remind the American people, however, that meat prices did not bring on inflation -- it was inflation that caused increasing meat prices," Woodson said, "Inflationary pressures have been boosting retail food prices for many years, but it has been only in the past few months that farmers began receiving decent prices."

The head of the 137,000-member organization said that farmers are more concerned about inflation than most other people because they have so many production items susceptible to price increases.

"We trust that the President will be equally firm about wage and price increases for other groups," Woodson said.

HEAD SPEAKS OUT

Dr. John Hopkin who became the new head of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology at Texas A&M University on April 1 has expressed concern over rising production costs of farmers and ranchers and the increasing farm debt. He also noted that there are many low and poor yielding investments in agriculture and that more farm loans should have a longer maturity.

GREEN REVOLUTION

The "Green Revolution" that was once acclaimed as the solution to the world food crisis is being hampered by such factors as population growth, drought, wastage and poor distribution, says an economist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Today, only one-third of the world's population lives in an area where the food supply is good; 80 percent of these people are in North America and Europe.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - If I designate $1 of my tax to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund, will it change any of the figures on my tax return?

A - No. If you designate $1 ($2 if married filing jointly) to the fund by completing and attaching Form 4875 to your return, it will not change any of the figures on your tax return. In other words, the tax due IRS, or, if applicable, the tax refund the IRS owes you, will not be changed.

Q - Is the cost of sending my child to kindergarten while I go to work a deductible child care expense?

A - Yes. If you itemize your deductions, expenses for nursery school or day care for pre-school dependent children may be deducted subject to certain limitations if they are paid to enable you to be gainfully employed.

Q - What about the cost of meals or education at a nursery home or kindergarten -- are they included in the child care deduction?

A - Benefits incident to child care, such as food or education, are not child care expenses. However, where the manner of providing the care is such that the payment covers other incidental benefits inseparably a part of the care, the entire cost will ordinarily be considered as being for care. Benefits will not be considered as inseparable if the expense includes education in the first or higher grade level. Such expenses must be apportioned between the part that represents the cost of education, and that part that represents care of the child.

Q - What form should I use to compute my child care deduction?

A - IRS Form 2441, "Expenses for Household and Dependent Care Services," or equivalent computation detail should be submitted with your return, if you deduct child care expenses. Use the order blank on the back of your tax form package to obtain a copy.

IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Disabled Dependent Care," describes the limitations on the deduction. It's available free by contacting your local IRS office.

Q - My son is a full-time student. How much money can he earn before I can no longer claim him as a dependent?

A - Regardless of his age, if you son was a full-time student for some part of each of any five calendar months (not necessarily consecutive) of 1972, or was less than 19 years old at the end of the year, you can claim him as a dependent no matter how much money he made. You also must meet all the other dependency tests, including furnishing over one-half of you son's total support.

Q - I recently filed my tax return. When will I get my refund?

A - If your return is complete and accurate, you should have your refund within 4-6 weeks from the day you filed.

Should your refund be delayed beyond this period, wait 10 weeks from the date of filing your return before contacting the IRS about it. This will allow time for the IRS to contact you in case there are errors in your return such as errors in arithmetic or missing Social Security Numbers, W-2's or schedules.

Cathedral Gets Face Lifting

By Earl Copeland Jr.

SAN JUAN

The cathedral of St. John the Baptist in old San Juan is getting a face lifting so it will look as it did when mariners of past centuries came to offer thanks for their safe arrival.

The cathedral, at the corner of Cristo and Luna streets, is not the original building, which was built of wood and thatch between 1521 and 1529, and later destroyed by a hurricane. The present cathedral was begun in 1540 and the circular stairway and vaulted gothic ceiling were built between 1540 and 1560.

Just before the 16th century ended, the cathedral was looted by the Earl of Cumberland. In 1615 a hurricane blew off the roof, but the circular stairway and the two vaulted rooms nearby were preserved and are regarded as authentic and rare examples of Renaissance architecture in the Americas.

For centuries passengers and crews of arriving ships disembarked at what is now San Juan Gate and walked in procession to the cathedral where a thanksgiving mass was offered for their safe voyage. New governors, bishops, Spanish royalty, incoming residents and troops all made their way to the cathedral.

Dr. Arturo Davila, dean of fine arts at the University of Puerto Rico, and member of the Puerto Rican Institute of Culture is in charge of the restoration work for the arcdiocese of San Juan. Plans were first drawn up in 1970 and work in the rear of the building is under way to renovate four halls to include a museum containing some of the precious silver and gold religious articles made by Puerto Ricans, mostly in the 15th and 16th century.

Restoration of the tower has begun. The work is intended to restore the cathedral to the appearance it has been the 16th century and 1898, when the Spanish - American War made Puerto Rico part of the United States. The next step is restoration of the porticos which will eventually contain valuable examples of religious art and the entire renovation will take into account the new liturgical forms ordered by the Vatican Council.

"What we are doing is returning the cathedral to the people. It will be a dynamic school of the Puerto Rico Christian community, as well as a place of worship," Davila said. The walls inside are to contain both inspirational and educational inscriptions when the work is completed, he added.

The facade of the cathedral will be drastically changed to restore it to its appearance in 1898. Some parts will be removed and other parts rebuilt. Statues of Saints Peter and Paul will probably flank the entrance. A general facelifting, including new paint, woodwork, doors and finishing will accompany the architectural changes.

Easter Seal Society Seeks Aid

A further request for support of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults and its program of services to the handicapped was issued today by E. J. Manning who is the Easter Seal Representative in Milam County.

The Easter Seal Society provided treatment and services for 16,572 physically handicapped children and adults in Texas last year, Manning said, and this program needs to be expanded. Many people are going without services that would increase the productiveness of their lives and make them happier. With increased growth of the Easter Seal Society, more and more of these people will be reached, he added.

The Society is carrying out a continuing program to seek out the disabled who are doing without services and see that they receive the help they need. As Easter Seal Representative, Manning is the person to contact for services from the Easter Seal Society.

... to see the Truth

"Heather here in Scotland is so common it grows everywhere. Why do you wish to study it?" I asked a botanist.

He then suggested taking a single flower from the cluster and looking at it through his microscope.

I was amazed at the delicate shading and breath-taking design of an individual bloom. I almost wished he hadn't shown it to me. I trample on thousands of them every day.

The beauty and blessings of life are enhanced by observing God's creation through the lens of Truth.

Consider the Church as a spiritual microscope. It helps you see the worth of single souls. It encourages you to call no man common or trample his capacities under the foot of indifference. It helps you discover and appreciate all the wonders of God's marvelous creation.

Reclaimed Cans Big Business

Aluminum Company of America, which produces more metal in Texas than any other state, estimates it will buy some 330 million aluminum cans for recycling in 1973 -- almost double the number it reclaimed last year.

The projected 1973 figure, 15,000,000 pounds of metal, virtually equals the scrap aluminum containers Alcoa reclaimed in 1970, 1971 and 1972 combined. The company operates pilot reclamation programs in the Dallas - Fort Worth metropolitan area and San Diego, Calif., where it is redeeming about 40 percent of the available aluminum cans. Alcoa also buys cans collected by beverage companies and scrap dealers at several other locations.

Dr. Miles O. Colwell, Alcoa vice president - health and environment, attributed the dramatic increase in collections to the public's growing concern for the environment. He also pointed out that aluminum's high scrap value, $200 a ton, has been a great incentive to collectors who are profit - motivated.

"We have found that some people are supplementing their regular income through can collecting," Dr. Colwell said. "In addition, many groups have adopted aluminum can collecting as a method of raising funds for a variety of projects, many of them charitable."

Since Alcoa's program began in late 1970, the company has paid collectors about $1.5 million for their efforts.

Reclaimed cans are shipped to Alcoa's Warrick Operations near Evansville, Ind., for remelting and rerolling into rigid container sheet for sale to manufacturers of aluminum cans and easy-open ends.

The aluminum industry estimates that two billion aluminum cans will be returned for recycling and reuse in the U. S. this year -- or about 20 percent of the cans produced.

That percentage is up from 16.3 percent in 1972, 11.6 percent in 1971 and five percent in 1970. There are more than 1000 collection centers in 39 states operated by aluminum companies, beverage companies and scrap dealers.

SUMMER OF '73 -- Students and college officials rig their sails on Lake Belton in preparation for "Summer of '73" -- the most extensive summer education program in the history of Mary Hardin-Baylor College. "Summer of '73" includes more than 150 academic courses, nine workshops, five specialized summer camps, and a new Athletic Day Camp for youngsters six to 16.

Consumer Complaints From Used Car Buyers

By Atty. Gen. John Hill

If you ask the folks who man the Better Business Bureau, or a local Consumer Information Desk, or those who work in the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office, "Where do most of your complaints come from?", they are likely to answer, "From dissatisfied used car buyers."

Why should the purchase of a used car so often lead to misunderstandings? Well, primarily, because the typical consumer doesn't enter the market often enough to know what to look for, and what to avoid. If the consumer does his "homework," he will know how to shop for an automobile.

A used car transaction can be a satisfactory event when informed consumer and honest automobile dealer get together.

Two of the most common complaints we receive are 1) that the dealer didn't "keep his word" on the warranty, and 2) that the buyer didn't get the car "I was supposed to get."

These problems can be avoided. Get a full, specific assurance of warranty, and get it in writing that spells out how long the warranty lasts, what it covers, and whether it is limited to parts or service.

Also, consumers who didn't get the cars they were "supposed to get" may have met up with a bait - and - switch artist. Bait - and - switch is the name of the game when a dealer advertises a make and model at a special price, then pawns off a different item, sometimes with the offhand, "Oh, the one we advertised wasn't nearly as good." The Attorney General's office can, and does, take action in cases like that.

Odometer rollbacks can be almost as bothersome, because they mean lost money to the person who was trying to make a saving by buying a used car in the first place.

The main point to keep in mind is that most car salesmen are honest businessmen with a product to sell. Pick an established dealer.

And, avoid the used - car blues by approaching the lot with the same caution you would use if you were buying a new car, a new home or a new washing machine.

Shop around. Reputable dealers will be proud to have you compare their stock to their competitors'.

Don't be shy about getting a variety of trade-in estimates on your old car, so you will have a realistic idea of how much the newer model actually will cost. Your old car is one of your most tangible assets.

Examine carefully the tires, the grease and oil stickers, the brake pedal and the interior of the model you choose. A low odometer reading won't mean much if other indicators point to heavier use.

Drive it. A dealer who bases his business on returns and referrals would prefer that you put it to the test. And if you're not mechanically - inclined, he'll welcome the opportunity for you to have your own mechanic check it out.

LEFTOVER EGG

Refrigerate leftover egg yolks in a jar with water covering them -- they'll keep 2-3 days like this, according to Mrs. Gwendolyne Clyatt, consumer marketing specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

SPIDER EGGS

Most spiders produce about a hundred eggs at a time but some lay from one to as many as a thousand, National Geographic says.

SIX FLAGS SPLASHDOWN — Guests at SIX FLAGS Over Texas come out laughing, and slightly wet, at the end of an exciting ride on one of the theme park's popular Log Flumes. The family entertainment center at Arlington, midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, plays host to more than two million fun-seekers a year. The 145-acre facility features more than 95 rides, shows and attractions. It is now in its twelfth season.

New Vaccine Developed For Scours

A new vaccine is now available to reduce newborn calf losses resulting from a form of diarrhea caused by a reo-like virus.

Known as reoviral calf diarrhea vaccine, the new product has been licensed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and is available to cattle producers through local veterinarians, says Dr. James Armstrong, veterinarian for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The new vaccine was developed and patented by the University of Nebraska.

Armstrong cautions producers to consult their local veterinarians before embarking on a massive vaccination program. "The new vaccine is not a cure-all for all types of diarrhea in young calves. However, vaccination could be especially helpful if a farmer has had previous trouble with calf losses from diarrhea during the first week of life.

"The key to successful use of the new vaccine is to vaccinate calves as soon as possible after they are born," emphasizes the veterinarian. "Vaccination after the first day of life probably won't stop diarrhea."

To vaccinate, the vaccine is mixed with a diluent in a syringe, the syringe needle is removed, and the vaccine is sprayed into the back of the calf's mouth.

The reoviruses (short for respiratory - enteric orphan viruses) which caused diarrhea in calves are common disease agents in both man and animals, points out Armstrong. They infect the digestive as well as the respiratory system but have not been definitely classified.

"The new vaccine should cut down considerably newborn calf losses caused by the reo-like viruses since there is no alternative way to prevent or treat this type of diarrhea in the young animals," adds the veterinarian.

Feeders Invite Boycotters To Be Business Partners

AMARILLO

Texas cattle feeders are up tight about beef boycotters who don't understand the law of supply and demand. But rather than fight back with holding actions, they're using the "olive branch approach" and inviting city investors to become "business partners in a pen of cattle." This would mean, of course, sharing the risks of cattle feeding.

It all started when the Cleveland, Ohio, city council passed a resolution proclaiming the month of April "Boycott Beef Month" as a measure to "bring the meat industry to its knees."

In response, the cattle feeders sent the following telegram to Councilman Basil Russo, sponsor of the resolution:

"Noting your concern about high beef prices, the members of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association invite you or the City Council to become a business partner with us by investing in a typical pen of 200 head of cattle to be put on feed.

"First, you should be aware of the risk involved. A 650 pound feeder steer at today's price of 55¢ per pound will cost $357.50. The steer normally would stay on feed 150 days, during which time it would gain about 400 pounds. The 400 pounds of gain will be charged at actual cost, which now is running about 30¢ per pound.

"Normal death loss is 1%, although it has averaged 2% during this severe winter. Interest on your investment will run 8%. Thus, when the steer weighs 1,050 pounds and is ready to sell, our breakeven cost would be $498 or 47¢ per pound. The current selling price in Texas is 46¢ per pound.

"All profits or losses will be shared equally. If the cattle sell for 52¢ per pound, our profit will be $10,500. On the other hand, if they sell for 42¢ per pound the loss will be $10,500. If interested, please call or wire."

The Texas Cattle Feeders Association, headquartered in Amarillo, represents cattlemen who fed 4,308,000 head in 1972, making Texas the No. 1 cattle feeding state in the nation.

Draft Board Numbers To Drop

The reorganization of the Selective Service System announced by Colonel Melvin N. Glantz, State Director of Selective Service for Texas, will affect the local draft boards in Central Texas.

The number of local board offices in Texas will be reduced from 107 to 63 by the end of 1973. In Central Texas there will be five area offices where there were previously 12.

Selective Service System Area Offices will be located in Waco, Temple, Austin, Bryan, and Brownwood. All of these moves will be completed by the end of 1973.

The local boards in Central Texas will continue to function as they have previously with each serving the same counties. Under the standby draft situation, local boards will probably meet quarterly rather than monthly. Board meetings will continue to be conducted in the same town where the board has previously met. On occasion, the board members may be called to special meetings at office sites.

Announcing the reorganization throughout Texas Colonel Glantz stressed that the local boards themselves will not move, only the employees and records.

IRS Reminds Of Deadline For Taxes

Monday, April 16, is fast approaching for those taxpayers who have yet to file their Federal income tax returns for 1972.

R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, urges taxpayers to avoid the last minute rush - to make every effort to prepare and file their own returns now!

"Many taxpayers prepare their own returns by following the instructions, but a qualified tax specialist is a sound investment for complex tax problems," Phinney said.

Phinney reminded taxpayers to mail their tax returns in the special envelope provided, or address them to: Internal Revenue Service Center, 3651 South Interregional Highway, Austin, Texas 78740.

TIC Plans Industrial Directory

Plans to publish a comprehensive directory of Texas' manufacturers and products have been announced by the International Trade Division of the Texas Industrial Commission.

The directory is one of several projects developed by the Industrial Commission to promote Texas products in foreign markets. It will help Texas manufacturers develop or expand foreign marketing programs by providing overseas firms with specific information on Texas - made goods.

"Each year we receive literally hundreds of requests for information on Texas' products and services," James Havey, director of International Trade Division, said. "Information of this nature is available from several sources, but there is presently no comprehensive listing of companies in Texas involved in international trade or those who would like to establish a foreign market."

Havey said the Industrial Commission is currently mailing questionnaires to industrialists requesting information about their company, product and/or service. He urged Texas manufacturers to complete the forms and return them to the Industrial Commission as soon as possible.

Answers from the questionnaires will be used to compile a cross reference of Texas' products with the companies that produce them.

Copies of the directory will be available to Texas businessmen from the Industrial Commission when published.
